Bay buys depot and bank building

BY TRACI BONNEY

Bay St. Louis is in the final stages of buying the old CSX railroad depot.

The Bay St. Louis City Council, with a 5-0 vote Tuesday, authorized an $8,600 down payment for the depot.

The city intends to renovate the building and grounds, and open the depot as one of two stops for Amtrak's planned passenger service. Several ideas have been generated for the building's interior, including a mini-museum and retail stores.

The City Council also accepted an environmental study of the former Peoples Federal Bank building on Court Street, and authorized the mayor to proceed with the acquisition of the building, which will be used as the new City Hall annex.

Mayor Eddie Favre said the city hopes to close on both purchases by mid- to late-October.

APPOINTMENTS

The mayor recommended that Charles Scianna be appointed to the board of governors of the Mississippi Coast

Planning and Development District, and Kevin Fitzpatrick be named to the organization's board of directors. The Council approved unanimously.

Scianna's term will be for two years. Fitzpatrick's will be for three. Both terms start September 30.

The Council also unanimously approved Favre's appointments of Robert Williams and Clark Breland to the Parks and Playgrounds Commission, and accepted the resignation of

Bulk unloading facility remains at Port Bienville

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County Port and Harbor commissioners approved the leasing of the Port Bienville Industrial Park bulk unloading facility to Ryan Walsh for an additional three years.

The lease agreement is for the dock and wharf at a coal loading facility.

Two injured in bridge accident

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Two drivers involved in a three-vehicle accident on the Bay Bridge Tuesday remain hospitalized.

Both Fernando Romero, 19, of Gulfport and Hubert Lewis, 64, of Pass Christian were reported Wednesday to be in stable condition.

Bay St. Louis Police Department accident reconstruction specialist, Sergeant Dave Sellier, said the 11 a.m. accident resulted when Romero, driving west on Hwy. 90 across the Bay Bridge, lost control of his 1984 Chevrolet Blazer during heavy rainfall and crossed the center lane.

Lewis, driving a 1991 Ford pick up truck and towing a boat east-bound, hit the Blazer broadside, opposite the driver.

Michael Pickich Jr., 21, of Pass Christian was approaching behind Lewis in a 1985 Honda and striking the boat and trailer impacted under the truck.

Sellier stated, all three men were transported by Mobile Medic; Romero and Pickich to Memorial Hospital at Gulfport and Lewis to Hancock Medical Center. Pickich was treated and released.

Sellier added, Romero was cited only for insurance purposes, as speeding too fast for weather conditions and failure to yield right-of-way.

bulkhead. Walsh paid $60,000 as his share of the repair costs.

The commission approved advertisement for lawn maintenance.

Tourism & Gaming Association wants unified promotion of Coast

BY TRACI BONNEY

When you ask Jim Henrie about the role of the Hancock County Tourism & Gaming Association, you find that his ideas go beyond the county's boundaries.

"You'll notice that 'tourism' comes before 'gaming' in our name. We see gaming as the magnet for tourism."

"Our major thrust at the moment is to see if we can unite Coastwide. I think our value is in our totality."

"The three counties used to compete for the same tourism dollar. I think those days of competition are gone, that there will be more than enough for everyone now."

Henrie said he isn't sure just what mechanism should be used to unite the Coast, but suggested that perhaps the Harrison County tourism association could be extended to the other two counties to create a Coastwide organization.

"The way I see it, we either start on this now, or find ourselves forced to do it later, and we may not be able to do it the way we would like if that's the case," he commented.

"I think that sooner or later we'll see similar (casino) attractions in Louisiana and elsewhere nearby. As it is, gaming is being legalized elsewhere in the country, and that dilutes the dollars to be had from the

Mississippi mud

Victoria Street damage causes residents problems

BY TRACI BONNEY
The residents of Victoria Street could use a minor miracle. You could call it the Parting of the Red Mud.'

The street is little more than an extended mud puddle right now, due to a city sewerage project and unpredictable weather.

Scott Duncan found out the hard way just how unstable the road was Tuesday, when he tried to travel it in his GMC pickup. About halfway down the one-block stretch, he bogged down almost to his front bumper.

Duncan was supposed to deliver an air conditioning unit to a friend's storage unit he thought was on Victoria, but he couldn't get out of the mud without help.

Waveland building inspector Keith Mitchell and Victoria Street resident Jay Fountain talked for several minutes about the problem. Fountain said the street has been in disrepair for close to a year.

"We've seen the contractor come out here to work on the street three times, and it's still a mess. We didn't have mail for a month, and we have trouble getting the trash collectors out here. It's a real problem," Fountain said and his wife said.

Duncan said the contractor had promised to have someone come help him with his truck, "but I haven't seen anyone so far," he commented.

Contractor Henry Martinez drove by a few minutes later. When asked why the road was in such bad shape, he said, "It's part of the process of a sewerage project. We came in to do a

Killed Aug. 14, 1979

Rest peacefully now, my precious son.

It's hard to believe your life is done.

I'm thankful for all the years I had.

With you, my son, and your loving dad.

It saddens my heart to think of you both.

It's hard to say whom I miss the most.

I'm all alone and the day lingers on.

But it's at night when I feel all alone.

Part of you is still in our home.

At times it's hard to think you're gone.

I'll leave your room forever untouched.

Oh, my son, I miss you so much.

St. Francis/Sycamore Neighborhood Watch to be formed

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
The Bay St. Louis Police Department's crime prevention unit held a 'walk down' Monday evening, in preparation for the formation of a new Neighborhood Watch area.

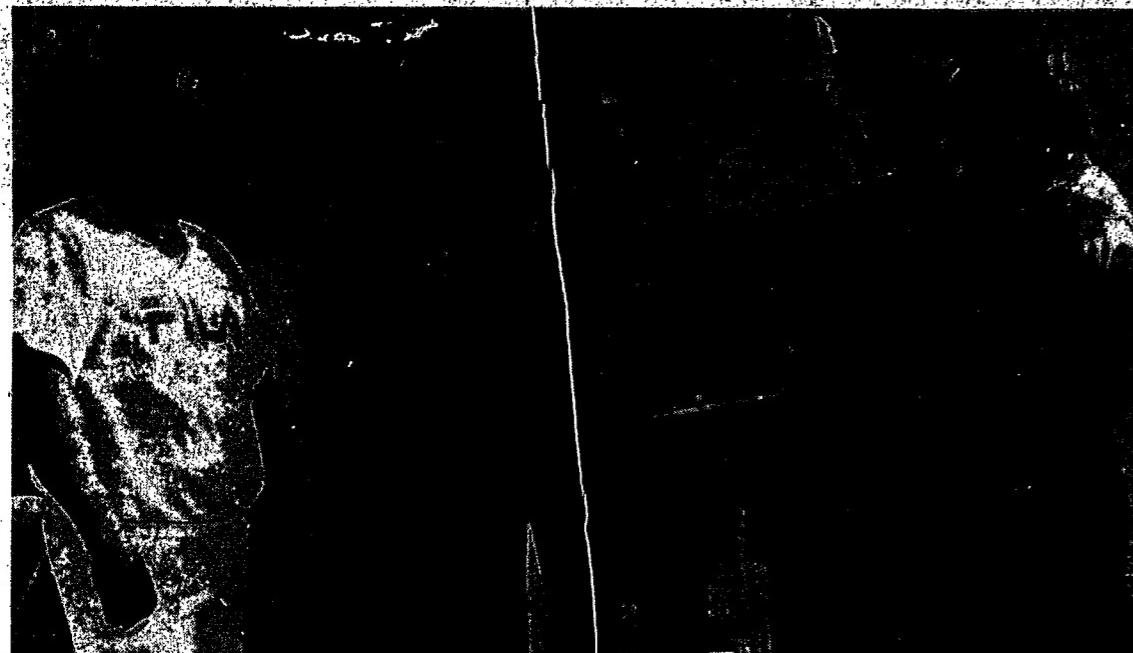

The targeted area is from Bookter to Washington Streets between the Old Spanish Trail and railroad tracks.

Among those participating were Lt. Don Oeso, Bay Police Department's crime prevention officer, Jim Clark, assistant crime prevention officer, Sam Nichols, Nancy Peebles, Betty Price, Charlie Daniels and Earl Robinson.

Oeso said, "This is part of the police department's efforts to have the entire area served by a Neighborhood Watch program."

The first meeting for the new Neighborhood Watch will be Wednesday, Sept. 30, at 7 p.m. at the Morning Star Baptist Church, where the Rev. Alex Wesco serves as pastor.

industry somewhat.

"We have to show people we're different, because we do have a truly familial atmosphere here. We should send the message, 'Yes, we are a major gaming resort, but look what else we have to offer.' We are on the threshold of an unprecedented economic shot in the arm."

Henrie said he envisions first a Coastwide, then a statewide, tourism and gaming organization that will both promote the state's attractions and lobby in the legislature for fair taxation and reasonable legislation of the dockside gambling industry.

The local tourism and gaming organization is 2½ years old and has almost 400 members. Henrie said he expects the group to have 700-800 members by next March.

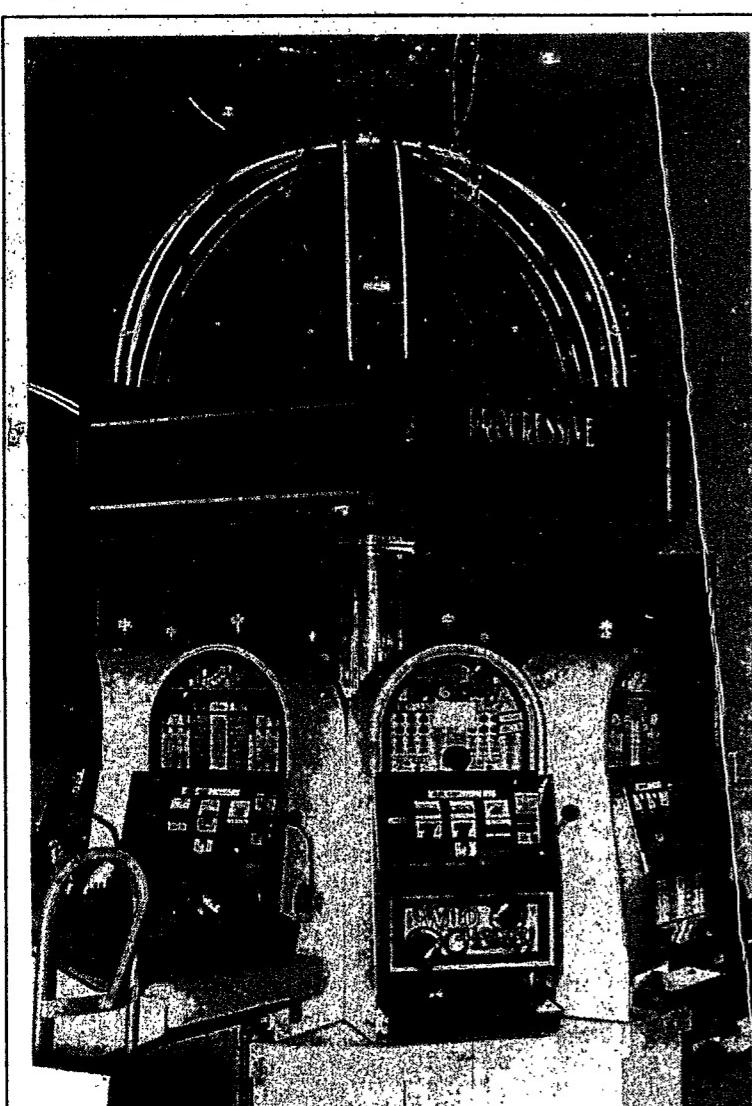

The group has not lost its local purpose, Henrie said. He stated that the T&GA plans to promote both Casino Magic and Bayou Caddy Casino "at every opportunity."

"We pledged at the beginning to support the industry any way we are asked to do so, and we plan to do that."

He mentioned that the organization has, in addition to supporting the dockside gambling industry in the county, contributed donations to local schools and the county youth task force through fund raising events.

"I think our job is just beginning," he stated. "Something we have is that our organization is not diversified. Our objective is focused; our energy is focused. There's no limit."

"I believe we will be a viable organization for the benefit of the county forever. Well, not forever, but for a long, long time."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

J. D. McCullough Stadium should be overflowing with Tiger fans on Friday night, as the unbeaten Bay High Tigers play host to East Marion.

Hancock High will host St. Martin's Yellow Jackets at Hawk Stadium.

It will be 'on the road again' for winless St. Stanislaus, as they journey to East Central Friday night.

Tiger fans are whooping for joy over Bay High's three victories in a row, something which has been missing in high school football for many years at the Bay school.

Three years of hard work by head coach Rocky Gaudin and his coaching staff is showing dividends.

The rewards are coming from an improved football program in the lower grades, as well as the high school.

Bay High's booster and fan support helps the team, too, as the Tigers have really come a long way in a little over two years.

Last week Bay High fought a tough battle with good play on both offense and defense. They took an away-from-home 13-12 victory over Forrest County Aggies in Brooklyn.

Irvin Favre's Hancock High Hawks will tangle with a red hot St. Martin Yellow Jacket squad sporting a new coach this season. Seasoned coach David Oaks' Jackets racked up his 200th victory against the Rocks last Friday by a 34-15 score.

St. Martin only has a small squad in number of players, but they have some talented players.

The Hawks of Hancock bounced back after a loss to 5-A Harrison Central, shutting out Long Beach last Friday.

The conference game against St. Martin will be a good test for Hancock.

The District VIII, Class 4-A conference has a lot of teams who are contenders for the championship this season.

The Rocks of St. Stanislaus are still looking for the right combination for a victory this season and will travel to East Central for Friday night action.

The young Stanislaus squad plays well in spurts, and as soon as they can do it for an entire game, they will put their team in the victory column.

Stanislaus appears to be improving with each game, and this could be their week.

One thing is for certain, East Central can put the points on the board. In cause you have doubts, don't forget the 41-21 victory over Pass Christian a couple of weeks ago.

The Pirates of Pass Christian will play host to the St. John's Eagles Friday night. Pass got into the win column with a 3-0 squeaker over Sumrall last week.

St. John is one of four teams along the Coast undefeated thus far this season.

Pass Christian has its work cut out Friday. Remember, all kick-offs are set for 7:30 p.m.

Your local team needs your support.

Hancock County progress will be the topic of the September Hancock Chamber of Commerce Morning Edition at 7:30 a.m. Friday.

The Morning Edition will be held at the Waveland Resort Inn, and is sponsored by South Central Bell. Buz Olsen, executive director of the Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission, will report on Port Bienville and the Stennis Airport activities.

Sounds like this should be an interesting program by our chamber and I hope it will be well attended.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Waveland resident defends polite behavior at meeting

Dear Editor,

After reading the article in Sunday, Sept. 20 paper under "Pier Rangers Stay," I ask you give me the courtesy and space to correct or should I say "And now the rest of the story," since we do not have a Paul Harvey.

Your reporter, under "other business" for the City of Waveland, reported and you published that the board adjourned and Zeleda Farrell loudly protested the adjournment from the audience.

WRONG! I ask that your reporter please report the stories correctly. The citizens of Waveland deserve better.

1. My name is not Zeleda Farrell, as no one bothered to ask or I would have correctly given it. My name is Zelida Farrell.

2. If your reporter would have reported the story fully and correctly, it would have stated:

Mrs. Zelida Farrell rose, raised her hand, quietly and politely waited to be recognized.

Mayor Frilot chose to deliberately ignore her presence.

After she asked for a motion to adjourn the meeting, Mrs. Farrell said, "Excuse me, may I please ask a question before you adjourn your meeting?" She was told that there was motion on the floor. She did not say anything more.

After business was conducted, Mrs. Frilot asked for the second time a motion to adjourn the meeting and again Mrs. Farrell asked to please be recognized and was dismissed by the mayor as a naughty child, not a taxpayer or citizen, not to mention a native of Waveland.

I only ask again that your reporters report the stories fully and correctly as they happen and are not biased to the mayor and print only what she tells them.

Thank you,
Zelida L. Farrell

FROM THE SENATE

Advancing the solid rocket motor

I talked with about a dozen Mississippians employed in the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor program by telephone recently about their concerns over funding for the project. I hope the conversation and my answers to their questions helped to allay some of the fears about losing the ASRM program.

I realize the turmoil that the uncertainty of ASRM has caused in the lives of the people involved in the program, the communities affected and for thousands of other interested Mississippians. Let me tell you what I told them.

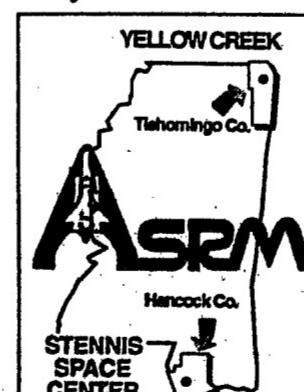

The VA, HUD & Independent Agencies appropriations bill has some funding in it for ASRM. There is not enough funding in the bill as it stands, with only $50 million, to fully fund the program. What the $50 million does do is allow us to go into a conference between the House and Senate to get the funding level back up.

We have a great number of positives for ASRM that give us some pretty big bats for a conference.

Dan Goldin, director of NASA, has indicated that he wants ASRM. Dick Darman, Office of Management & Budget director, says that the administration supports funding for ASRM. And when I handed Vice President Dan Quayle pictures of the Yellow Creek and Stennis sites in a meeting last week, he was impressed by the amount of construction completed. The Vice President, who also serves as head of the Space Council, agreed that ASRM is important and should be continued.

The administration agrees with us that ASRM is important to the space station, to the space program and to the great number of jobs that are involved.

They also know that the ASRM design improves motor safety and will allow the space shuttle to carry 1/3 more payload. And, they know that ASRM means fewer shuttle flights—at $296 million each—will be necessary to build space station.

This gives us a new confidence and a stronger strategy to defend ASRM. While full funding is not assured, I am confident that ASRM will be continued at Yellow Creek and the Stennis Space Center.

Beckwith's re-trial causes questions on unsolved cases

The prospect that Byron De La Beckwith, the accused slayer of Mississippi civil rights pioneer Medger Evers 23 years ago, will be retried over a quarter of century after the state failed twice to get a conviction, has triggered new national interest in the state's unpunished civil rights crimes.

Court observers believe that if the justices follow their recent precedents in the area of speedy trial, they are likely to rule against a retrial of Beckwith some 28 years after two previous trials ended in deadlocked juries.

The 1963 Evers murder case had been resurrected two years ago by aggressive young Hinds County assistant District Attorney Bobby DeLaughter after evidence surfaced from files of the old State Sovereignty Commission that commission investigators had helped defense attorneys screen prospective jurors in the second Beckwith trial in April, 1964.

DeLaughter secured a new murder indictment of Beckwith in December 1990 based on his contention that new evidence had been uncovered in the case.

Beckwith, found living in Signal Mountain, Tenn., fueled the story into a bizarre reprise of the almost forgotten civil rights episode by hurling incredibly racist remarks in television and newspapers interviews after his re-arrest for the Evers slaying.

As the case has dragged through a series of legal delays in restaging the trial and finding a new site other than Jackson, it has spawned the commissioning of books on the Evers case by three major publishers.

As the case has dragged through a series of legal delays in restaging the trial and finding a new site other than Jackson, it has spawned the commissioning of books on the Evers case by three major publishers.

This has given rise to national media interest in still other unpunished Mississippi civil rights slayings, some well-known and others little known, over the past three decades. Right now, USA Today has a team of reporters working on a special news story which will raise questions about possible revival of at least six civil rights murders of blacks dating back to 1955.

Two cases of prime interest include the 1955 "wolf-whistle" slaying of a 14-year-old black Chicago schoolboy named Emmett Till who was visiting relatives in the tiny Delta Village of Money; and the 1959 lynching of Mack Charles Parker, a 23-year-old ex-soldier who was taken from the jail at Poplarville and shot by a band of masked whites while awaiting trial on charges of raping a white woman.

In a steamy courtroom at Sumner, two white men were acquitted of murder charges for lynching young Till from a cotton patch shotgun shack, then killing him and dumping his body into the Tallahatchie River. Later another grand jury in Leflore County declined to indict the two men of kidnapping. One of the men is still alive and living in Mississippi.

Although the FBI, after a massive month-long probe of the 1959 Parker lynching, turned over evidence to the state incriminating at least 10 white men in the case, no one was ever indicted or tried for the crime. Most of the men named by the FBI are dead, but one or two are still living.

Other cases expected to be spotlighted in the USA Today piece include: the 1955 slaying of the Rev. George Washington Lee in Belzoni, the murder of Lamar Smith on the steps of the courthouse in Brookhaven in 1955, the slaying of farmer Herbert Lee near Liberty in 1961 and the murders of two black youths, Charlie Eddie Moore and Henry Dee near Meadville in May, 1964.

Reverend Lee, who had been active in encouraging blacks to register to vote, was killed by a shotgun blast through the windshield of his pickup, but the sheriff dismissed the slaying as the act of another black and made no arrests.

Lamar Smith, a black voting advocate who had been believed by whites to be campaigning against election of a white county official, was shot down in broad daylight outside the Lincoln County courthouse in August 1955, while the county sheriff was looking on. Claiming the could not identify any of the assailants, the sheriff made no arrests.

With his family looking on, Amite County NAACP leader Herbert Lee was killed in 1961 by a white assailant as he attempted to crawl under his truck outside his farmhouse. No one was ever charged.

The bodies of Moore and Deed, both 19-year-olds, were found in the Mississippi River several months after they disappeared from Meadville in May, 1964. The FBI found the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan had "executed" the youths as suspects of plotting a supposed Black Muslim uprising.

Two white men were arrested by the FBI, who turned the case over to the state. The local DA dropped the case for "lack of evidence."

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

New post office administrator means business

The size of the federal government continues to grow unabated. During a period in which the private-sector workforce has shrunk, the number of federal employees has increased by more than 24,000 during the last four years.

We have to ask ourselves, does the government payroll really need this type of growth?

Is it really necessary for the Department of Agriculture to have 129,000 employees, one for every 16 farmers? Does the Department of Transportation operate more efficiently because of the 68,049 employees under its domain?

Perhaps even more frustrating is the type of work we see being produced by federal agencies. Examples: The IRS publishes a three-page amendment to a 1989 regulation because it originally neglected to include information required by the Paperwork Reduction Act. A committee of the Environmental Protection Agency gathers to study "the environmental hazards of showering."

Now, there is a former businessman who says he will make a difference at one of the most criticized government agencies, the United States Postal Service. Marvin Runyon, who took over the Postal Service on July 6 after a stint with the Tennessee Valley Authority, came into office with an ambitious three-point plan.

Runyon's agenda calls for improving the quality of service to the customers, stabilizing postage rates and, perhaps most importantly, reducing the layers of bureaucracy. He has wasted no time in putting his agenda in place, within a month of taking office. Runyon had reduced, from 42 to 24, the number of executives in the Postal Service's main headquarters.

Efficiency in government is possible, as Marvin Runyon is attempting to show. Now, if the rest of government would just follow suit.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

If life hands you a lemon, so goes the old saying, make lemonade. That's good advice, I'm sure; but I doubt that life can ever hand me too many lemons—fresh, tangy lemons, that is! To my mind, fresh lemons are as indispensable item in my kitchen as my Tabasco and pepper!

On sultry days, for instance, is there anything more refreshing than a tall, frosty glass of lemonade? A splash or two or three of fresh lemon juice perks up many a bland dish and perks up the appetite as well and, if you've ever had to cook or eat without salt, you know how delightfully a generous squeeze of fresh lemon juice can take its place.

One of my favorite of favorite dishes is a tangy, spicy chicken concoction which owes much of its success to fresh lemons; nothing can really replace fresh lemons, so please, please, don't try this recipe with bottled lemon juice.

It just won't taste the same, believe me! Here's:

LEMON CHICKEN

(If you want to get a bit fancy, call it by the French "Poulet au Citron.")

1 fryer, cut up as if for frying;

I usually add 3 or 4 extra pieces, or at times use 2 chickens

6 lemons, sliced

4 medium onions, sliced

Red pepper flakes

Oil as needed

Pepper, to your taste; salt

optional

This dish is especially good when the chicken pieces have been marinated overnight in onion and lemon and seasonings; but you may cut the time if you must. At any rate, slice the onions and peel and dice the lemons, making sure that you peel the lemons "to the quick," removing all the bitter white pith.

Place a layer of lemon and onion slices in a bowl (or use a heavy plastic bag) and next a layer of chicken pieces, seasoning liberally with chopped red pepper or pepper flakes (no salt, please!) Repeat the layers until you've added all the ingredients, ending up with a layer of lemons and onions.

Drizzle a little oil over it all,

and marinate in the refrigerator until the following day.

Then, remove the chicken from the marinade. Brown the pieces just a few at a time in the barest amount of oil, in a heavy pot, over fairly high heat. In this way, the chicken browns, but doesn't cook all the way through. If you are using salt, season a bit with it as the chicken browns.

When it's all browned, remove any excess fat, so that you leave only a tablespoon or so, along with the caramelized juices and "bits and pieces" which stick to the bottom of the pot. Then, add the onions and lemons, cover the pot quite closely and simmer for 30 to 40 minutes or until the chicken is tender. Don't add water unless the chicken seems to be burning, as the lemons should render enough juice to keep it moist. Correct seasoning as needed. Serve with rice. (4 servings.)

I have also cooked this lemon chicken over the coals. After marinating the chicken pieces overnight, I brown them. Next, for each serving (2 or more pieces) I place the chicken on a double layer of foil, adding the lemon slices and onions and pepper flakes, and perhaps a bit of salt.

I fold the foil over tightly and cook the chicken over the hot coals, turning from time to time as I think about it. (Cooking time depends upon your grill's heat; open the foil package and check if it's done after a half hour or so—and, oh, the heavenly aroma when you open the package!)

Crispy fish and chips credited to the British

The traditional English way to serve fish and chips is to drizzle them with malt or cider vinegar and then sprinkle with salt. In British take-outs it comes wrapped in newspaper, but we suggest putting on plates!

FISH AND CHIPS

4 potatoes
Vegetable oil
1 pound lean fish fillets
2/3 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 tablespoon vinegar
2/3 cup water
Cut potatoes lengthwise into 1/2-inch strips. Heat oil (2 to 3 inches) in deep fryer or Dutch oven to 375°. Fill basket one-fourth full with potatoes.

Slowly lower basket into hot oil. (If oil bubbles excessively, raise and lower basket several times.) Use long-handled fork to keep potatoes separated.

Fry potatoes 5 to 7 minutes or until golden brown; drain on paper towels. Place potatoes in single layer on cookie sheet and keep warm. Repeat with remaining potatoes.

Cut fish fillets into 2x1 1/2-inch pieces. Pat dry with paper towels. Mix flour and salt. Mix baking soda and vinegar. Stir vinegar mixture and water into flour mixture; beat until smooth. Dip fish into batter, allowing excess batter to drip into bowl. Fry 4 or 5 fish pieces at a time (do not use basket) about 3 minutes, turning fish once, until brown. Drain on paper towels.

Set oven control to broil. Broil potatoes 6 inches from heat 2 to 3 minutes or until crisp. 4 servings; 375 calories per serving. This recipe credited to Betty Crocker's 40th Anniversary Edition Cookbook.

Approximately 80 people gathered at the corner of St. Francis and Sycamore streets in Bay St. Louis Sunday in demonstration of community unity against drug abuse. Black and white, male and female, young and old offered prayers near a vacant building littered with discarded beer bottles and cigarette butts. Speakers representing various denominations prayed for unity, strength, assistance and guidance in the battle against drug use. They asked that the ground upon which they stood be blessed, and that those who use it for self-destructive activities come to know the error of their ways. The gathering was the first substantial action taken by citizens following the murder of Cindy Lizana Acker. The gathering was a directive of a church task force, one of four formed within the past weeks to address drug abuse within the community. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

ASRM may be partially funded

A joint House-Senate committee compromise may breathe new life into the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor program, if the two chambers approve the bill.

The conference committee Tuesday approved spending $195 million for development and $165 million for construction of the ASRM plant in Tishomingo County at the site of the abandoned Yellow Creek nuclear power plant.

Rep. Jamie Whitten, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a member of the conference committee that negotiated the $360 million bill, said the bill ensures that the project will continue.

NASA had originally requested $465 million in FY'93 for the ASRM program, but the funding was not approved.

The $360 million compromise bill went to the full Senate and House for approval Wednesday.

If approved by both, it will be sent to President Bush for his signature.

In addition to the ASRM funding, the bill includes monies for Housing and Urban Development, the Veterans Administration, NASA, and other independent agencies.

The Yellow Creek plant at Luka is expected to be finished in 1994 and cost nearly $3 billion. The motors built there will be tested at Stennis Space Center.

Sen. Trent Lott, who lobbied for the restored funding, said he was pleased with the conference bill but had hoped for more funding.

Lott pointed to the recent discovery of a leaking seal in a booster intended for a November Discovery launch as one of the reasons the ASRM, which will use solid fuel instead of liquid, is needed.

However, critics of the program claim that the program is part of the "pork-barrel" politics of the federal government, and that the program could have adverse effects on the environment.

Commission director Harold "Buz" Olsen suggested the contract service as a cost efficient step. Grass cutting is presently performed by Port and Harbor employees.

A low bid for railroad ballast was accepted by the commission, while bids for cross ties and rails were rejected for lack of competitive bids.

Ballroom dancers plan event here

The Ballroom Dance Club announces the Blue Stars Orchestra, featuring vocalist Carlos Santiago, will perform at the Hancock County Civic Center (Longfellow Drive), Saturday, 8 p.m. to midnight, Sept. 26. There will be a special guest appearance by Alma Flick, vocalist, and a ballroom dance exhibition by James Page and Michelene Farmer.

Admission is $5 per person for members and $7.50 per person for the general public. BYOB with set-ups available.

ON PATROL

From Echo Staff Reports

ACCIDENT

An accident at Old Spanish Trail and Turner Street Tuesday afternoon resulted in no serious injuries, Bay St. Louis Police Department accident reconstruction specialist Sergeant Dave Sellier reported.

According to Sellier, Martha Chamber, 48, of Waveland was eastbound on Old Spanish Trail shortly before 4:30 p.m., while attempting to make a left turn into the Corner Market Grocery Store parking lot, she was struck by Nan Bradley, 47, of Bay St. Louis, driving a 1986 Honda westbound along Old Spanish Trail.

Bradley and her daughter, Brandi Bradley, were taken to Hancock Medical Center by Mobile Medic, treated and released, Sellier stated.

He added, Chambers was cited for an expired driver's license and failure to yield right-of-way.

Undefeated PRC hosts Jones

Once upon a time, not too long ago, the annual "cat fight" between the Pearl River Wildcats and Jones Bobcats was more than just a contest for bragging rights.

It was a maroon and gold war to see who would be the team to beat for the coveted state crown. During 68 years of recorded Mississippi JUCO football, the two south Mississippi teams, separated by less than 75 miles of U.S. Highway 11, have won more than one-third of the state titles.

Include Mississippi Gulf Coast at Perkinston and the triangle of power has chalked up 36 overall titles or 51 percent of the laurels.

Pearl River leads the pack with 14 state crowns, while Jones is second at 11 and Gulf Coast with 10.

The 1992 season may be a turning point for all three teams. The last one standing during the next few weeks just may be on top when November rolls around.

On Saturday, Sept. 26 Pearl River (3-0) will entertain the Jones Bobcats (2-1). Both teams are 1-0 in the South Division with PRC holding a slim 30-29-2 series advantage.

The Wildcats are undefeated but they have struggled in every contest. PRC's defensive unit and kicking game has been the difference as PRC defeated Northeast 21-14, Hinds 21-15 and Holmes 10-0.

PRC used a 41-yard run by James Holloway and a 19-yard for him to recuperate.

The Wildcats have amazingly escaped serious injuries this season. Offensive tackle Chris Selman has a bruised shoulder and there are a few other sprains, but overall everyone else is healthy.

The game is scheduled for 7 p.m.

A&G not sold yet

BY TRACI BONNEY

No, the old A&G Theater has not been sold. That's what owner Maggie Hayden is telling those who inquire about the 65-year-old building on Beach Blvd.

"There are some people interested in it, but no, it has not been sold," she said Wednesday.

About the overhang that was removed earlier this week, she stated, "It's going to go back up. I'm just having some repairs done on it."

She added with a chuckle, "It was built in 1927, and it is structurally sound, no matter what some people who want to buy it cheap might say."

The old theater, allegedly called "a thing of beauty and a joy forever" by the public, according to an April 16, 1927 Sea Coast Echo article, showed movies from its opening until it closed in 1961.

HHS Hawks plot first district win

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Hancock High School football team is setting their sights on a first district win this Friday against the St. Martin Yellow Jackets.

To achieve that goal, according to head coach Irvin Favre, there are several things which must be accomplished.

First and foremost, the defense will have to stop quarterback Chris Henry.

"He is probably the best option quarterback right now on the Coast," Favre stated.

"He is fast, and is able to get from point A to point B in no time. We really don't have anyone who can keep up with him."

In order to counter Henry's speed, Favre said the Hawks have been working hard all week on improving their key reading.

"There are only three things a quarterback can do: give it, keep it or pitch it. The Hawks will have to jump on his every move."

Favre commented, "Overall the team showed some really good effort last week. They played better as a whole, in blocking and defense."

"They are surely not complete as a team, they still make lots of mistakes, but the mistakes are correctable."

"For as much improvement as they are making, there is still more to be accomplished. I would like to see more key downfield blocks, more tackles and, of course, improvement in our kicking game."

"Our kicking game is not as good as we had hoped it would be by this time," he added. "Just look at the last game we played. We didn't make an extra point."

"But with practice, we are going to get better."

Favre stated, "We are facing a really good team Friday. They achieved their first district win last week."

"In regular season play they are 3-1, with their only loss going to 5A Wayne County. Coach David Oakes is outstanding."

"But, as always, the Hawks will give their best effort."

"I hope the crowd continues to come out and support the team. Since this is our first district play, it is a big game for us."

The Hawks, 2-1 for the season, will combat the Yellow Jackets, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in HHS stadium.

Tigers face state champions

BY RANDY PONDER

Two undefeated teams will collide Friday night at Joe D. McCullough Stadium when the Bay High Tigers play host to defending District 8, Class 3A state champion East Marion.

"We will have to play extremely well to have a chance to win," Bay High coach Rocky Gaudin stated. "They are more talented this year than last, with 13 starters returning from their championship team."

The Tigers defeated Forrest County AHS in Brooklyn last week, 13-12, for their third consecutive victory this season.

"We were real fortunate to get out of there with a win," Gaudin said. "We did not play all that well against a good district opponent at their place, and still managed to pull out the game. That's a sign of a good team," the Tiger coach explained.

Gerrit Carver blocked two extra points in that contest to preserve the win. "We moved the ball most of the night, and the defensive play was good, but we were inconsistent at times," Gaudin said.

Larrene Lewis was certainly not inconsistent. The fleet footed back rushed for 120 yards and one touchdown on 17 attempts. Lewis has amassed 318 yards in three games on 44 rushes for a 7.2 average.

Leroy Hawkins was named offensive player of the week by the Bay High Athletic Club. Hawkins picked up 55 yards on seven carries and now has 120 for the year.

Defensive player of the week is L.C. Curry with seven solo tackles and four assists.

The Tigers are averaging

Rocks roll to East Central

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws will travel to East Central for Friday night high school football action.

The Rocks are off to a slow start with four losses this season with a very young inexperienced squad.

Last week against St. Martin, Stanislaus had some good moments and put 15 points on the scoreboard, two more than a total of 13 for the first two games of the season.

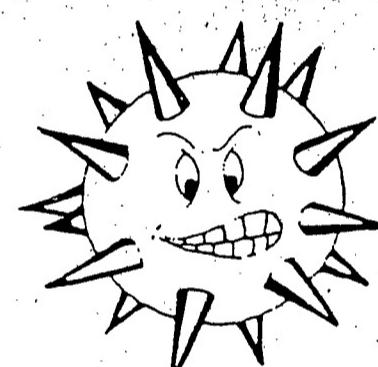

Brandon Benoit had a good game against St. Martin rolling up 140 yards in 21 carries, as well as quarterback Jeffrey Bishop, back Stanley Chapman and fine block by fullback Kris Minchew.

Rock head mentor Ken Lyons said, "We are still working on fundamentals, as we have been making far too many mental mistakes."

USM to host intercollegiate golf event

The University of Southern Mississippi will host the 1992 Mississippi State Intercollegiate Golf Tournament Oct. 12-13.

Men's teams from USM, Ole Miss, Jackson State, Delta State, Millsaps, Mississippi

"We are developing with each game with a young inexperienced squad, and one must remember that we are in a very competitive conference. So many teams can take the championship," Lyons added.

Lyons said his Rocks' passing game improved in last week's performance and this is a good sign.

"I like to run a balanced attack, as it keeps the defense guessing, as to whether it will be a run or pass. This opens opportunities for our offense," Lyons commented.

In Friday night's game against East Central, Stanislaus should have all players on the squad ready to play with the exception of split end Nathan Middleton, who had a leg injured in the Bay High tilt. Middleton, who also is the backup quarterback, should be ready in about two weeks, Lyons reported.

A late transfer from another school may be added to the team down the road, without naming him, Lyons said.

Lyons indicated this week he is toying with some new things with his offensive team, but would not elaborate further.

Stanislaus should expect a lot of action in the game with East Central which runs a Winged-T offense.

Kick-off is set for 7:30 p.m. in East Central's stadium.

one of the Mississippi school teams. A USM Invitational for all the teams also will be played.

Team trophies will be awarded in men's and women's divisions. Men's and women's all-state teams also will be named.

Kilm basketball star receives another honor

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
Kilm Consolidated High School basketball star, Coach J. Larry Ladner, once again has been recognized for his achievements by being named as an honorary member of the Mississippi Athletic Trainers Association.

Ladner retired July, 1991, from the University of Southern Mississippi as assistant professor (basketball specialist) in the Department of Coaching and Sports Administration.

The presentation was made in recognition of the outstanding dedication to the state of Mississippi, education, athletics and athletic training.

Ladner is highly respected and held in high esteem by his peers.

He is for certain a future Hall of Famer in Mississippi for his outstanding accomplishments on the promotion of basketball throughout the state, nation and internationally.

In commenting about the special award, Ladner said, "I accepted this honor with the utmost and humble appreciation. It is especially meaningful due to the dignity and prestige of the Mississippi Athletic Trainers Association."

"The leadership and service provided by the Mississippi Association of Athletic Trainers enhances the well being and safety of our young athletes," Ladner added.

The 1955 graduate of Kilm High, attended Pearl River Junior College and Louisiana

J. Larry Ladner

College on basketball scholarships.

He received a bachelor of science degree from Louisiana College and a master's of education from the University of Southern Mississippi.

His doctoral study includes nine hours from the University of Indiana, six hours from the University of Alabama, and fifty-five hours from the University of Southern Mississippi.

Prior to joining USM, Ladner spent eleven seasons as head basketball coach at Picayune Memorial High School. There he established himself as one of the most successful coaches in Mississippi prep history, posting a record of 253 wins and just 82 losses.

His Picayune basketball teams won such honors as the South Big Eight Conference championship, district championships, the South Mississippi championship and second place finish in the overall state championship.

Ladner was honored in 1980 by being invited to Maracaibo, Venezuela to conduct a two-week basketball clinic sponsored by the National Institute of Sport and the University of Zulia.

He was the first American representative to coach and conduct basketball seminars and clinics in Venezuela.

The veteran basketball mentor has had numerous articles published covering nearly every aspect of the game of basketball and has conducted clinics across the South.

Over ten years he has conducted a very successful coaching seminar on the USM campus; a seminar that has grown to be one of the largest of its kind in the South.

He has also directed the University of Southern Mississippi "Golden Eagle" basketball camp, which was held for two sessions during the summer months and which had 300 plus participants of junior and senior high school level players.

Ladner was the first high school basketball player from Hancock County to participate in the Mississippi North-South All Star game in 1955.

Ladner reports he still has a jacket given to him from the tourney.

He was also selected as one of the top 500 players in the nation, and was the most valuable basketball player in Hancock County for 1955.

As a student at Kilm High Consolidated, Ladner served as class president for 1951-52, 1953, 1954 and 1955.

At USM he received in 1987 the Most Distinguished Professor Award.

Ladner is married to the former Peggy Ann Willoughby of Poplarville, and they are the parents of two sons and two daughters. They have one grandchild.

Son Jay Ladner is head basketball coach at St. Stanislaus and Stewart Ladner is a senior and football player at USM.

Daughter Pamela Ladner is the regional director for Bugle Boy Company (ten states) and resides in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and daughter Kimberly Littrell resides in Hattiesburg.

His mother, Mrs. Bertie Mae Ladner resides in Kilm.

Ladner and his wife now split their time between their home in Hattiesburg and Kilm on Bayou Coco.

Hunter education classes scheduled

Hancock County hunter's education classes will be offered October 5-10.

The October 5, 7, 9 and 10 class will be taught at 6 p.m. in the Mississippi Power Building on Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis.

For more information on the Bay St. Louis class call Antoine Boyd at 467-6838.

Mullet is the best bait for hard-fighting jack fish

It's time to go fishin' y'all. I received a report this past week from a usually unreliable source, that Craig Sellier caught a zillion-pound jack crevalle on, according to his brother Bruce, a three-pound shrimp, using two-pound test line and a light action rod.

Since this report sounded slightly "fishy," and since I have not seen a zillion-pound jack fish lately, I felt that maybe I should check this fish tale out. So I took the turtlemobile over to the last known location of Craig Sellier.

how he was able to run down and catch that 300-pound rabbit that he claimed to have killed last hunting season.

For those folks who want to have some fishin' fun catching jacks, you gotta know that these hard hitting, hard fighting fish have started to show up big time plenty all along the shoreline.

It was just a matter of time before the jacks started to show up in the area. You see, the favorite food of jacks, mullet, are all over the place.

The jacks seem to like early freight trains called jacks?

First and foremost, you gotta use a steel leader at least 36 inches long. Then you need either a heavy duty, surf duty, spinning outfit or a big game rod with a Penn-type reel. Most folks recommend using at least 20- to 25-pound test or heavier, on the spinning reel and 50-pound test or more on the Penn-type reel.

The best bait is what the jacks are feeding on—mullet—a 10- to 12-inch mullet on a heavy hook. I recommend that the mullet be hooked through the back about the middle of the dorsal fin. The reason for this hooking location is that the jacks seem to prefer to hit the mullet from the tail. By placing the hook in the middle of the mullets' back instead of through its eyes, you increase your chances of setting the hook in the jack.

The large Pet Spoon (I think it's called the Pet #2) is also a very effective bait for jacks, especially when used on spinning tackle.

The best way to fish the spoon, on spinning tackle, is to cast the spoon in the direction of the striking jacks and reel in like crazy. The faster the better. The idea is to make the spoon bounce and skitter on the top of the water so that it looks just like a mullet trying to escape from feeding jack fish.

Anyone who has some good recipes to cook jack, please send them in to the paper and I will make sure that they are spread around.

I found another place that sells live bait. It is called Sylvester's Fish Camp. Sylvester Pagano operates this camp in Henderson Point daily between 6 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. He carries live shrimp, pet mullet and shiners. Sylvester's phone number is 452-2636.

The camp is located on Boisgore Bayou which is also called Henderson Point Bayou, and is directly behind Annie's Restaurant. He claims that his camp is the "official" hangout for the over-70s bunch, and he always has hot coffee for anyone who is willing to swap stories.

This week's wonderful wise words: the trout are hitting shiners big time at night under the lights.

How much is a zillion pounds, turtle?

When I found Craig, he was polite enough to describe the events surrounding his catch of jack fish. He took great pains to explain to me at length that he has never caught a zillion-pound jack fish. The biggest one that he has ever caught only weighed slightly over one quarter of a ton.

Since Craig has the reputation of being truthful and honest about all of his fishing and hunting escapades, I guess I will just have to take him at his word as to the size of the jack fish that he caught this past week. Besides, he might tell me

College Football Highlights

For Sept. 26

It's going to be one of the very few college football weekends when there won't be that many attention-getting confrontations, at least in Division 1-A. However, this is the type of Saturday where upsets are just lurking around the corner.

Atlantic Coast Conference fans can look forward to the Clemson-Georgia Tech scramble. Champion and co-runner-up in the league last season, this will go a long way toward determining the 1992 title. The Tigers were undefeated in the conference last fall, but their closest call—other than the 20-20 tie with Virginia—was a slim 9-7 win over the Yellow Jackets. Guess the result can't get much closer. We're picking Clemson.

And while we're in the ACC, one can't ignore the annual bitter battle between intra-state rivals North Carolina and North Carolina State. The Wolfpack has really scrapped the Tar Heels the past four years, running up a total of 124 points while holding North Carolina to just 25. The four-year domination might continue even though the Tar Heels are the home team. However, we like North Carolina.

Georgia hosts Mississippi in a Southeast Conference match-up. The Bulldogs fell to Tennessee two weeks ago 34-31 while Mississippi rolled over Auburn on opening day 45-21. Last year, Georgia tamed the Rebels 37-17. So, Georgia is a squeaker.

Looking quickly at the forecasting statix through games of Saturday, Sept. 12, we've picked 279 right and missed on 95 for a .746 average.

The Iowa Hawkeyes have had a couple of bombshells thrown at them to start the 1992 season. First it was an upset loss to North Carolina State and then an expected loss to Miami 24-7. Now comes a trip to powerful Colorado. More trouble. The Buffaloes will win it.

Penn State will beat Maryland, Miami will win over Arizona, and Nebraska is favored over Arizona State.

Homework help is on the way

Our Lady Academy teacher organizes hotline to assist local students

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Quadratic equations, misplaced modifiers, dangling participles, theorems and postulates.

Parents who could once converse fluently on such topics may now find themselves at a loss for words when their children ask for assistance with homework.

Help is on the way with the initiation of the "Homework Hotline." Students in grades kindergarten through 12 may contact a teacher nightly from 4 until 8 by calling the hotline number.

Our Lady Academy science teacher Theresa Braud is organizing the project, modeled after Louisiana's "Dial-A-Teacher." She is currently seeking teachers to volunteer to man the hotline on a rotating basis.

"I am hoping to get enough teachers so that each will have to work once every three months," said Braud. She will present the program to Bay-Waveland School System teachers Sept. 24, and to Hancock teachers in the near future.

The hotline is designed to provide short answers or explanations. A list of specialty teachers (calculus, computer science, etc.) will be available to each teacher answering the telephone if he/she is unable to help," said Braud.

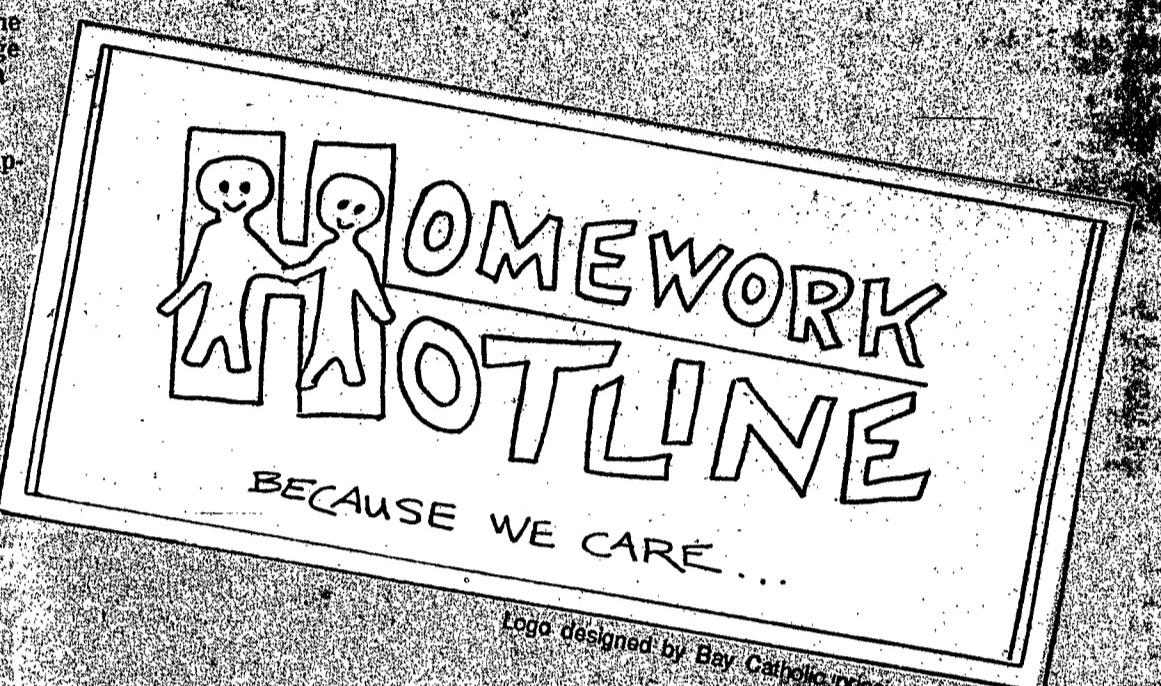

The Exchange Club of Hancock County has volunteered to pay the hotline's installation and monthly service charges. Call forwarding will be used to direct calls to the teacher on duty from the phone line at Our Lady Academy.

Hancock Bank has offered to pay advertising costs, and NAVOCEANO naval officers at Stennis Space Center have volunteered to answer the line if there is a shortage of teachers. Delta Kappa Gamma, a professional organization of female teachers, has pledged support to extend the program to Harrison County in the future.

We hope to be on line October 19, said Braud. The hotline number will be 457-2157.

Teachers active or retired, interested in helping, may call Braud at 457-2157 after 4:30 p.m.

A little TLC

Toy Library-Coast starts new program

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Toy Library-Coast is going high-tech.

The Toy Library-Coast, located on the campus of USM-Gulf Park in Long Beach, is beginning a Toys to Technology program.

Toy Library-Coast director Dr. Sara Jackson Benvenutti explained, "We are expanding the services of Toy Library-Coast to include computer access for disabled children. This program provides personalized computer use for those children who cannot use a keyboard. They can activate the keyboard with a puff of breath or a nod of the head."

"Through these technological advances, children are going to have an opportunity for greater independence."

However, as Benvenutti pointed out, the technology and people needed to teach its use are expensive. Total project cost is $56,440.

"We are applying to various foundations for assistance in purchasing the technology and hiring the people with the expertise to teach how to use the equipment."

"We will keep some of the equipment here and will loan some of it to the children. In addition, we will have some models to show teachers in the local schools what this program can do."

The Mississippi Power Foundation has awarded a $7,110 grant to the program.

Foundation chairman C.H. "Pete" Ball explained, "The Toys to Technology program is an innovative method to help enhance the lives of children with disabilities by improving opportunities to learn. The goal is to help these children learn to learn."

communicate with their non-disabled peers, thus increasing their potential for independence and productivity.

"The Mississippi Power Foundation is pleased to support forward-thinking programs such as Toys to Technology."

Ronald McDonald Children's Charities and the Knight Foundation, an independent outgrowth of the Knight-Ridder newspaper chain, also are funding the program. The Ronald McDonald grant is for $5,000; the amount of the Knight Foundation grant was not available at press time.

The Toy Library-Coast has been open to children with disabilities since November 16, 1990. The loaning library provides a selection of more than 300 toys that are selected or adapted for children with special needs.

The TLC staff teaches the children and their parents how the toys are used and how they help a child to learn.

The services at TLC are free of charge to residents of the three Coast counties.

School bus drivers need cooperation of motorists

Superintendent Paul Tisdale of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District announced the week of October 18-24 is School Bus Safety Week in Mississippi.

"Governor Kirk Fordice has signed a proclamation and called on the citizens of the state to exercise constant courtesy and caution when near school buses," said Tisdale.

"In Mississippi, we have over 5,000 school buses. They transport nearly 400,000 students to and from school each school day and travel some 42 million miles a year," he added.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District uses 18 school buses to transport 2,000 students a day. These buses travel over 110,000 miles each year.

"During School Bus Safety Week," said Tisdale, "we want to inform the citizens of our district about our pupil transportation program. We are also asking for their cooperation in helping us to maintain or even improve our safety record."

"Our school bus drivers are doing a great job, but they need the cooperation of other motorists. All of our buses use an eight-light school bus warning system," Tisdale said.

"These lights are located on the front and rear of the bus near the top where you see the 'School Bus' sign. The lamps are used to warn other traffic about what the school bus is doing."

"When the bus is approaching a loading or unloading area, the yellow lights will flash. Red lights will flash when the bus is stopped to load or unload students and a stop arm will be extended from the side of the bus."

"This system was adopted a number of years ago because it more closely follows other traffic regulations. The alternately flashing yellow lights mean 'caution' to other motorists top of a mission church.

"When I left for Argentina," said Leanne, "I expected our team to be a real blessing to the town where we were going. I had no idea how much of a blessing they would be to me. I can't thank God enough for the love and faith they shared with me."

Bennett also attended Governor's School at MUW with classmate Kim Nguyen in early summer. Approximately 150 juniors and seniors participated in the three-week program.

Bus Safety Week is October 18-24

because the bus is preparing to stop.

The flashing red lights and stop arm mean 'stop.' Motorists are required by law to stop at least 20 feet from a stopped school bus that is displaying flashing red lights and a stop arm.

One of the most common bus driver complaints, according to Tisdale, is that motorists frequently violate the school bus stop law.

Motorists are required to stop for stopped school buses that are displaying flashing red lights and a stop arm," said Tisdale.

"Sometimes the drivers are not fully alert and pass a stopped bus. This action creates a very dangerous situation for the children, especially the younger ones who may not be watching traffic as closely as they should. Students have been killed because motorists did not stop for the school bus while it had its red lights flashing and its stop arm out.

"The school transportation system is a big business," said Tisdale. "Last year, our district spent over $158,000 in transportation services." He went on to explain that besides being big business, pupil transportation is also important business.

"Our main concern is safety. We maintain our buses in as safe a condition as possible and they are inspected by both the State Department of Education and the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol. Both drivers and students are given instruction in safety."

Tisdale concluded by saying, "I hope that all of our citizens will work with the school district and continue to help make our pupil transportation system as safe as it can possibly be."

OLA seniors share missionary experiences

Seniors from Our Lady Academy had enriching and educational missionary experiences this past summer.

Leanne Bennett served as a missionary in Argentina in August. She was chosen to be one of a 12-member team from the Gulf Coast Association of 10 Southern Baptist Churches to visit Mar Del Plata, 200 miles from Buenos Aires. She worked with 30 children in a vacation Bible school and helped construct a home for the pastor on

Stennis Center builds plane testing facility

NASA and U.S. Air Force officials broke construction ground September 16 at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center, paving the way for the construction of the High Heat Flux Facility. This facility will test materials in support of the National Aerospace Plane (NASP) program.

The NASP is a joint project between NASA and the U.S. Department of Defense. The plane will be a flight test vehicle that will take off horizontally, fly into orbit at speeds of up to Mach .25, using air-breathing engines as its primary propulsion, then return through the atmosphere to land on a runway.

During the ceremony, U.S. Air Force Capt. Kevin McCloskey, test facility manager for the National Aero-Space Plane Joint Program Office, applauded the work of SSC employees, saying, "Support from the design team and everyone at SSC has been outstanding. I am personally very grateful, and the NASP program as a whole is very grateful, for the efforts you have put forth."

Also participating in the ceremony were NASA's Patrick Schuermann, acting manager of the NASP project office at Stennis, and NASA's Bill Taylor, associate director.

"This project is the lynch-pin for putting in a test facility capability at Stennis to support other propulsion programs around the nation," said Taylor.

Stennis Space Center was recently awarded $1.9 million from the NASP Joint Program Office toward the development of the new testing facility.

SSC was selected for NASP testing because of the center's experience in propulsion testing over the past 30 years, the experienced personnel and existing facilities.

Expected to be completed in April 1993, the NASP's High Heat Flux Facility at SSC will use gas generators to heat a 20-by-20 inch portion of the plane in tests that can vary in duration from three to 60 seconds.

Temperature during the tests will range from 4,000 degrees to 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The data received from the facility will enable NASP engineers to determine if there is any damage to the material and how heat was distributed.

The NASP will be traveling at tremendous speeds through the atmosphere which generate high temperatures. The materials that will be tested at the facility will be located in the combustion chamber, where temperatures can reach in excess of 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The first test at the facility is scheduled for August 1993.

Technology from the NASP could be used in the future for the development of the next generation of advanced tactical fighters or for the development of a "human ferry" from Earth to Space Station Freedom.

Stennis Space Center's role in testing materials at the High Heat Flux Facility is part of the technology stage of the NASP program. In the future, SSC's role in NASP testing may be increased to include expansion of the facility for testing the plane's thermal structure. In addition, SSC may become the site for testing NASP components and engines which would require the construction of major new facilities.

Quality check

Quality assurance manager Nick Biancosino (left) and quality control inspector Joe Webber, both of Gulfport, perform quality checks on the first products of AWM Enterprises Inc. AWM, the first company to re-use space at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant at John C. Stennis Space Center, has shipped its first products to customer Grove Worldwide of Shady Grove, Pa. AWM manufactures outrigger beams for hydraulic cranes. The beams, four to a crane, are hydraulically operated stabilizers that require specialty welding to meet stringent quality standards. AWM Enterprises is the only outside manufacturer Grove uses for the beams. Grove recently ordered another shipment of 96 beams from the local company.
